Many uses of REDWOOD.

California Coast Product a Strong Com petitor of Cypress.

In searching for a substitute for ordinary woods employed in construction work, the supply of which is rapidly decreasing, it has been found that the coast redwood forests of California offer a product which can be put to excellent commercial use. California redwood is durable and its fine working qualities make it a competitor of cypress, and also adaptable to many of the uses to which white and yellow pine are put. Redwood as sold on the market may be the product either of the giant sequoia or "big trees" that com mercial utilization of which has called forth great protests, or of the coast red wood. Cutting the big trees would mean the speedy extinction of this unique and wonderful species, which is found only in isolated groves and which produces only with difficulty, says the Boston Transcript. The coast redwood is much more plentiful and reproduces abundantly, so that it is a good tree for the forester to utilize for successive timber cuts.

It is likely that the lumber trade will encourage the use of redwood more and more in the future as comparatively little practical use has been made of the products of these extensive forests of California up to the present time. The use of redwood is now about 15% of the total consumption of lumber.
It is estimated that the forests of California have about 75,000,000,000 feet of standing redwood timber, and the wise use of these products by conservative lumbering will in a degree make up for the greatly lessened supply of other woods.

The Redwood Association has recently requested the forest service of the United States Department of Agriculture to make a complete study of the physical and mechanical properties of redwood timber in order to obtain reliable information concerning its properties. The forest service has decided to comply with this request and will conduct a series of experiments in co-operation with the University of California at the testing laboratory at Berkeley—Utica Ob server.

AN UNFRIENDLY POINT OF VIEW.

Entitled "Playing Politics With a Panic."

Secretary Corryton has earned the gratitude of the country for the prompt, quiet and efficient way in which he has attended to the financial needs of New York and the republic when the storm broke. That the dangerous conditions that led up to the panic were largely the work of the financiers themselves, no one questions; that responsibility for many of the elements of trouble lay with these men no one disputes; yet it is beyond question that had a prudent and sagacious president occupied the White House and had the public mind been calm and unalarmed the crisis might have passed without disaster.

The constant fulminations of the press induced a condition of suspicion and anxieties and was an element—an im portant factor—in precipitating the panic; and his letter to Secretary Corryton congratulating him upon his ac tions and wisdom is not only a fine ex hibition of nerve but an attempt to make capital out of the conditions he is to a considerable extent responsible for producing. The president found the annual editorial, as he observed the high ex plosives surrounding it, was responsible for the match that produced the explosion; and in the same spirit he admires the activity of Dr. Corryton, who was first on the scene with his ambulance, and he has no objection to having us believe he sent him to the explosion.

During the week from October 10 to 16, inclusive, a count of the mail matter going out of the office was made and the results were as follows: Letter, 47,566; post-cards, 17,154; pieces of sec ond class mail matter, 58,108; pieces of third class mail matter, 13,192; pieces of fourth class mail matter, 1,140; pieces of free mail, 2,602.

While undoubtedly some recklessness and imprudence on the part of bankers have been wrecked, on whom no sympathy will be wasted, the wide destruction of the storm has caught many an innocent sufferer in its sweep whose vanished savings and investments will not be restored by the snug and cosy utterances of Mr. Roosevelt. We have simply so much to say about the press that produced the explosion, and in the same spirit he admires the activity

The Knock-out Blow.

The blow which knocked out Corby was a revelation to the prize fighters.

From the earliest days of the ring the knock-out blow was aimed for the jaw, the temple or the jugular vein. Stomach punches were thrown in to worry and weary the fighter, but if a scientific man had told one of the old fighters that the most vulnerable spot was the region of the stomach, he'd have laughed at him for an ignoramus.

Dr. Pierce is bringing home to the public a parallel fact:

that the stomach is the most vulnerable organ out of the prize ring as well as in it. We protect ourselves, throat, feet and lungs, but the stomach we are utterly indifferent to, until disease finds the solar plexus and knocks us out. Make your stomach sound and strong by the aid of Doctor Clegg's Golden Medical Discovery, and you'll find it a pleasure to live.
